As officially announced in this paper at the time, on the 1st of March the St. Louis Ore and Steel Company voluntarily, without solicitation, gave their employes at Pilot an advance of from 10 to 12% per cent, on their former wages. Rare as such occurrences are, generally speaking, this act was not unprecedented in the history of this company, which has at all times evinced a workmen that the times and situation will permit. An evidence of the truth of this lies in the fact that many of their men have been in the employ of the company for an uninterrupted period of years, and, amid all the turmoil of refused to go, saying, "Pilot Knobey goodey the contest between capital and labor, they nuf fer me." have been happy, contented and prospermuch soul as the Ore and Steel Company, no strike of 13,000 wagemen would now be upsetting the affairs of commerce and traffic. Therefore, the formation of the men at the Pilot Knob mine in a society protective of their rights and interests was not imperatively demanded by the necessities of their surroundings. That they have a right to form such a confederation no reasonable person can deny; that, if properly managed, away. it will conduce to their good in various ways is but reasonable; yet as the natural friend of every honest laborer seeking to win bread and comfort for himself and those dependent upon him, we caution them to be reasonable in their desires and do nought rashly.
